Project Summary

Habitat for Humanity's Young Leaders BUILD (HYLB) is a movement that engages young people across the Asia-Pacific region to take collective action to build homes and communities, and raise funds and awareness of the substandard housing situation in Hong Kong and around the world.

Habitat has successfully built HYLB up to be a solid youth engagement programme, partnering with future leaders to build sustainable communities. In 2018, Habitat for Humanity Hong Kong engaged 293 young volunteers to improve living environments for low-income families in Hong Kong and mainland China (six families in Guangdong Province). In 2017, Habitat Hong Kong engaged 75 volunteers through HYLB.

In the region, HYLB has gained great momentum since the first campaign in 2012, with 5,000 participants from five countries. In 2018, Habitat engaged more than 4.5 million supporters, raised US$1 million and helped over 2,500 families in the Asia-Pacific region.

A Overall Project Descriptions■ Rationale

Habitat believes there is a need to help youth in Hong Kong better understand housing challenges, locally and globally; and take action to secure a world where everyone has a decent place to live.

Through the annual HYL B campaign, Habitat Hong Kong engages young people to take action to improve homes for low-income families in Hong Kong, through cleaning and renovation activities in public housing estates, and to build homes and/or community infrastructure in mainland China.

Through this 'hands on' practical engagement, youth participants gain a greater appreciation of their own personal housing situation and been actively involved in supporting and implementing solutions.

■ Target Service Users

30 young volunteers (ages 15 - 30)

■ Approach

HYLB is based on the following goals:

1. To enable youth to support low-income families improve their living conditions through collaborative partnership.
2. To instill the spirit and values of volunteerism into young leaders.
3. To raise awareness of the effect substandard housing has on a family and community among young leaders.

Through HYL B, we provide young leaders with a platform to:

1. Develop creativity and leverage resources to create a world where everyone has a decent place to live.
 2. Contribute, in their own distinctive way, and address the challenge of substandard housing.
 3. Experience a unique youth service opportunity, where they play an integral role and have their voices heard.
 4. Empower their friends to make a difference and contribute to community development.
 5. Work alongside low-income families to create a better living environment.

■ Contents

The activities in the HYL B programme include:

1. Local youth volunteering activities in Hong Kong:
 - a. Home cleaning in public housing estates in December 2018 on International Volunteer Day;
 - b. Home renovation in public housing estates between January and March 2019.
2. House and/or community infrastructure construction in mainland China between March and April 2019. (Building houses in other countries in the Asia-Pacific region is also possible, but would mean fewer volunteers engaged due to increased expenses).

Outputs:

- > 90 Hong Kong youth engaged (60 with activities in Hong Kong, 30 with activities in mainland China)
- [70 Hong Kong youth engaged (60 with activities in Hong Kong, 10-20 with activities in another Asia-Pacific country, e.g. Myanmar)]
- > Approximately 690 hours of volunteering by Hong Kong youth (across Hong Kong and China)
- [Approximately 715 hours of volunteering by Hong Kong youth (across Hong Kong and another country in Asia-Pacific)]
- > 6 low-income families in Hong Kong supported with home cleaning.
- > 6 low-income families in Hong Kong supported with home renovation.
- > 2 low-income families in mainland China supported to build new homes.
